

Understanding Our Kids' World: Social Media and Gaming

Monday, January 25, 2021
7:30pm - 8:30pm

Social distancing and virtual learning have caused many children to turn to online games and social media to connect with their friends. Today's parents are wondering if being online is a lifesaver or a problem.

Join us for a conversation to learn how best to manage the role devices play in your child's life. You will also discover strategies for setting limits; potential warning signs; and how you can help your child navigate the online world.

This discussion will benefit parents of elementary, middle, and high school students.
